MODERATOR

Elena Dubinina, international relations advisor, European Association of the Via Francigena ways.

The first of a series of webinars addressed to sustainable cultural tourism, with a special focus on the European Route of Ceramics, a cultural itinerary of the Council of Europe.

What makes a territory attractive? What combination of products can create a unique tourist package? What are the ways to promote a location and its distinctive features, unique and recognizable among other destinations?

The webinar will present to the representatives of the European Route of Ceramics as well as to local operators in the tourism sector and students in the fields of tourism and historical-artistic-cultural heritage some useful clues for study and case histories, to create unique tourism products, combining different types of offers, such as arts, culture, museums, food and wine, cycle tourism, environment, etc.
