Instructions for "Simulating materials functioning by molecular dynamics"

The tutorial will be based on a Jupyter notebook in which all the passages to run molecular dynamics simulations will be explained step-by-step. The only prerequisite is to have a Google account to use Google Colab for launching the notebook and run the simulations.