Adaptations
for students with:
Learning Disorders
and
Attention Deficit
Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD)

For your exams you can ask for:

Compensatory tools:

- 30% extra time for written exams;
- The possibility to have a little bit of time to think and organize your answer, during oral exams;
- Digital exam, using the P.C.;
- PC with spell and orthographic checker and/or text to speech programmes;
- Reader;
- Calculator;
- The possibility to use concept maps or schemes, made by key words;

Dispensatory measures

- The possibility to split the exam in parts (partial exams);
- The possibility to have an oral exam instead of a written one;
- Different exam mode (ex: open questions instead of multiple choices);
- Evaluation of the exam taking into account the content, but not the form;
- Evaluation of the exam taking into account the procedures used instead of the results.

Adaptations for the exam must be defined along with the Professor, and must be asked at least 15 days before the exam. Exam program reduction are not allowed.

For your studies:

You can ask the Professors:

- slides or other didactic material used in class, either on paper or digital; ;
- a meeting to review the exam and discuss your mistakes;
- mock exams; samples examinations; past exam questions and samples of the correct answers

To attend classes you can ask the Professor to audio or video record by your own the lectures or to take photos of the board

If you want to self-study, or to study in group, even by using assistive technology, you can go to TecnoLab (via Zamboni 38—Bologna).

Each student is unique, for this reason it is necessary to define personalized solutions, even considering the specific features of each Degree Programme

Required documentation

For Incoming Exchange Students:

- You need to envy us the documentation about your special needs, either in English or in Italian. You can provide us the documentation issued by the Specialist of your reference, or you can ask your home University to send us your support agreement\support summary, along with a declaration in which they tell us your diagnosis and that they have, or have seen, your documentation.

For the students enrolled in one of the University of Bologna's Programme Degrees:

- Law-abiding diagnosis of Specific Learning Disorders (Law 170/2010), issued by the National Health Service, or by authorised private centre or by a private specialist, accompanied by a document of conformity from the Local Health Authority (AUSL). The diagnosis must not be more than 3 years old or it has to be issued after the student had reached the age of 18.
- Certification of others learning disorders or ADHD, issued under Italian law and by the Italian National Health Service;
- Certification of SLD, others learning disorders or ADHD, issued under foreign law, with legal translation or "apostille", when required.

To ask for adaptations:

You need to envy your documentation to the Service for Students with SLD and arrange a preliminary meeting with us.

After that you can:

- Write to the Professor by your own, copying us or talk with him\her during office hours
- Ask to the Service for students with disability to write to the Professor on your behalf to ask for adaptations or to inform him\her that you have special needs.

The adaptations required must be coherent with the special needs indicated in your certification and must be only those that have been indicated to you during the preliminary meeting with our Office.
