“Shareholder claims in international law”, Giappichelli Editore, 2024:

In international investment arbitration, shareholder claims for reflective loss possibly represent the most common kind of lawsuits. That is to say, shareholders are entitled to claim compensation for the drop in value of the shares caused by wrongful measures taken against their corporation. What is prohibited under corporate law and general international law has thus attained the status of a rule in investment law. Moving from an analysis of investment treaties and arbitral awards, an attempt will be made to uncover the reasons that led to such a legal overturn, showing the side effects of such an approach, while also paving the way for possible solutions.

SustainEUorPlanet: The project proposes an interdisciplinary and critical analysis of the EU's international policies and legal frameworks directed to economic and social fairness, respect for the environment, access to clean energy and essential goods, while looking for security to overcome geopolitical tensions and asymmetries. With a high-profile Coordinator and team, the Project has a twofold purpose. On one side, it offers a set of activities envisaging to form a ruling and academic class of excellence, while involving EU, national and international civil servants, politicians, NGOs, the local business and public administration. On the other side, SustainEUorPlanet shows the leading role of the EU as a global actor in constantly promoting a sustainability agenda for trade, environment, energy and climate policies, highlighting the importance of economic operators' accountability and the relevance that EU citizens can have in shaping and enforcing EU's external tools through participation and transparency.
