UNIVERSITY OF KUFA FACULTY OF ARCHAEOLOGY

BA in Islamic Archaeology

BA in ISLAMIC ARCHAEOLOGY

Our mission

The BA in Islamic Archaeology aims at preparing professional staff and at contributing to the scientific improvement in the fields of archaeology and heritage, especially focusing on the Islamic past at national and international level.

Degree structure

The new BA in Islamic Archaeology of the University of Kufa is a 4 years program including 33 teaching units focusing on the most updated archaeological concepts, issues and analytical techniques.

The 1st year provides a solid introduction in archaeological concepts and practical activities.

During the 2nd year, students will be provided with a more advanced understanding of several topics including Islamic material culture, remote sensing and GIS and technical drawing.

The 3rd and 4th years will be dedicated to the analysis of Islamic architecture from the Middle East and to Museum and Heritage studies.

Our facilities

The faculty is provided with study rooms, a library with multi-language scientific books and laboratories including the most updated tools for restoration, topography, fieldwork and the study of material culture.

Our staff

Our staff members include lecturers and professors specialized in different fields and with national and international cooperation experience.

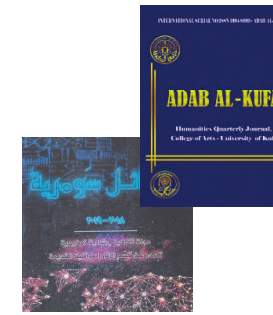

Fieldwork and internships

The new course will include two types of practical activities:

Fieldwork. Excavations and surveys carried out in collaboration with international institutions, will be useful to put in practice students' theoretical skills developed during the course.

Internships. Students will have the opportunity to attend a one month internship program in its local Shrines of Najaf as well as the SBAH to learn the job.

JOURNALS AND SERIES

CONFERENCES & SEMINARS

INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION

Every year the Faculty of Archaeology publishes several scientific volumes and journals including Adab Al-Kufa and Sumerian Messages.

The University of Kufa is a leading institution in Iraqi archaeology. Since 2018, thanks to the support of EDUU and WALADU projects, it hosted the International Conference for Research and Protection on the Archaeological Heritage of Iraq (ICRPAHI).

The Faculty of Archaeology is actively collaborating with several international academic institutions from Italy, Germany and Turkey among others.
